

Not all lots can have lots of frontage, but that doesn't mean we can't make the house look great. Create a craftsman bungalow look out front and save the garage for the backyard.

This two bedroom, two bathroom home is set up for all sorts of extras. Let's see how many we can come up with.

Walk into your spacious great room, vaulted if you like, and add an old-time bump out featuring a fireplace and side built-in cabinets. That's one.

Finish the lower level with another bedroom, bath and family room for a one-of-a kind guest suite. That's two.

Replace the pantry with a lower level stairs and add one or two bedrooms in the upstairs gable space—be sure to include another bath. That's three.

Okay, one more. Bump out the covered back porch and add some screens—now you have outdoor living—indoors.

The rest we'll leave up to you, after all, you have to do something to know that you are Home at Last.

Trifari

An essential part of Trifari's enduring success has been the powerful mix of glamorous clientele and prestigious publicity. They have been shown in Broadway musicals, commissioned by First Lady Mamie Eisenhower and worn by Madonna in the movie EVITA. The most coveted pieces are the Jelly Belly figural pins and Crown pins as well as the patriotic jewelry designs.
